

Jan 5, 2013, 12:20am EST

The Top 10 Jobs That Attract Psychopaths

Kelly Clay Former Contributor

Tech

I write about social media, startups and technology trends.

Everyone I have ever worked with has, at some point, called another colleague or coworker "crazy." But does your job actually attract true psychopaths? In the book "The Wisdom of Psychopaths: What Saints, Spies, and Serial Killers Can Teach Us About Success," Kevin Dutton explains that there are jobs that can attract literal psychopaths - and also jobs that are least likely to do so.

It's important to note that a psychopathic person isn't necessarily one that is set out to kill others (even though you might feel as such on a Wednesday afternoon in the office.) In reality, psychopaths merely - and typically - just lack emotions and empathy, or the ability to identify with others. Dutton has said that "a number of psychopathic attributes [are] actually more common in business leaders than in so-called disturbed criminals — attributes such as superficial charm, egocentricity, persuasiveness, lack of empathy, independence, and focus."

This may explain why many of the jobs attractive to psychopaths - such as CEO's, salespeople and media types - are often found in the tech industry.

So what jobs are most attractive to psychopaths? Here's the list, originally published online by Eric Barker:

1. CEO
2. Lawyer

3. Media (Television/Radio)

4. Salesperson

Today In: Tech

What Should Businesses Look For In A Cloud Service?

Three Security Questions Every Business Should Ask But Probably Doesn't

What Does The Future Hold For Fintech Startups?

---

5. Surgeon

6. Journalist

7. Police officer

8. Clergy person

9. Chef

10. Civil servant

And for those looking to potentially avoid working with the least number of psychopaths, here's the list of occupations with the lowest rates of psychopathy:

1. Care aide

2. Nurse

3. Therapist

4. Craftsperson

5. Beautician/Stylist

6. Charity worker

7. Teacher

8. Creative artist

9. Doctor

10. Accountant

Kelly Clay

I am a Seattle-based freelance writer with a passion for companies building products that solve real problems. You can find me on my personal blog, Facebook, & Twitter..... Read More

Print   Site Feedback   Tips   Corrections   Reprints & Permissions   Terms   Privacy ▼
© 2020 Forbes Media LLC. All Rights Reserved. AdChoices

ADVERTISEMENT

---